THE WEB 2.0 IS DEAD?
WIRKLICH?
WEB3.0 ... am Horizont
Can the Web Survive v3.0

Posted by emuTag on Sunday November 19, @11:46AM from the still-waiting-on-the-2.0-bugfixs dept.

robotride writes

"The battle lines between skeptic and evangelist are already drawn. Either way, Web 3.0 will either be the new face of the Web that launched a thousand empty business plans, or the tipping point into a vastly more exciting phase of the Web. This Web 3.0 article asserts that the marriage of artificial intelligence to the infrastructure of Web 3.0 will dramatically accelerate our capacity for distributed problem solving. However, it also issues dire warnings on the potential hyper-euphoria that will accompany it."

2.0 isn't even out of beta yet!  [Score:5, Funny]  by WilliamSChips (793741) on Sunday November 19, @11:49AM (#16904712)
web 3.0

Saturday, November 18, 2006

Web 3.0 - You Ain't Seen Nothing Yet!

Web 3.0. The recently coined term that has many in the blogsphere screaming "Stop the keyword hype!" and others waxing hopeful that the next wave of Internet progress is finally starting to percolate. Before the seed has even sprouted roots, already bloggers are asking "but will it make any money?". Donna Bogatin asks this very question in her blog post "Will Web 3.0 Be In The Greem?"

It would be easy to write this question off under the category of being one that is far too soon to ask. It appears that this question, and a host of others, will be stuck with us for the decades ahead, due to the /national/ exuberance that poisoned the dot-com bubble. Hopefully once the Web 3.0 bubble truly gets under way, and there definitely will be one, bloggers like her will remain the sober watchdogs that were missing from the tulipmania of the dot-com bubble. I fear that many of the ones now linkbaiting in their blogs with early cries of foul against Web 3.0, will rapidly change course once the rampant euphoria begins to flood. They will do so to persist their linkbaiting activities and because the euphoria that will accompany Web 3.0 will make the current Web 2.0 mania seem harmless by comparison.

Why do I make such troubling assertions now, especially when you consider that I am one of those looking with great hope to Web 3.0? Although many are looking at Web 3.0 as the next extension of the social networking technologies pioneered in Web 2.0, and others are dismissing it as a marketing ploy to rekindle interest in the Semantic Web, I feel there is a stronger theme that will drive Web 3.0 to explosive levels.

First I need to make a crucial point about what I feel will be the primary driver of Web 3.0. I will return to my cautions on the upcoming hyper-euphoria that will accompany Web 3.0 in a few paragraphs. Please read on.
2.0 + SEMANTIC WEB
(2.0 +) SEMANTIC WEB
UND AUSSERDEM
THE WEB2.0 IS BUBBLE2.0
Sagt

GERMAN

BLOGOSPHERE
KULTURPESSIMISMUS?
ÜBLICHE
VERDÄCHTIGE
MACHENSCHAFTEN
ABZOCKE DER COMMUNITY
INDIZIENLAGE
FLICKR Verkauft
MYSPACE Verkauft
YouTube
verkauft
UND SONST?
NUR SCHLÄFFE KOPIEN
F...book, S....VZ
UNZÄHNLIGE VIDEOx
ETC.
THE WEB 2.0 SEEMS TO BE DEAD...
NEIN!
ICH KANN NICHT OHNE:
ES MACHT IMMER NOCH FREUDE
IDEEN GIBT ES
BLOG-AGGREGATION
und SNA
PERVERSIVE GAMES
SMARTMUSICMOBS
UND WOHER KOMMT DAS GELD?
CO-CREATION?!
FEINGRANULAR
INDIVUALPROSUMER
ERSTMAL ANFANGEN...
... 1001 WEGE ZUM EXIT
... WENN ÜBERHAUPT
UND WAS SOWIESO BLEIBT
DER MENSCH
DIE KREATIVITÄT DESHALB WEBMONTAG
JETZT AUCH IN KL
"DENKFABRIK"
"SOUNDS GREAT"
“GO AHEAD”
DANKE TIM
DANKE TIM BL
DANKE TIM BONNEMANN